e2open

Jeffrey Olszewski helps OEMs and their suppliers turn emerging requirements into real, working capabilities.

With over 20 years in supply chain technology, he focuses on how data moves across n-tier supplier networks—specifically addressing the challenges of standardization, interoperability, and supplier adoption. At e2open, Jeffrey partners with OEMs and suppliers to implement solutions that can capture, validate, and exchange data across complex, multi-tier ecosystems.

He brings a grounded view on what it takes to move from pilot programs to scalable deployments—especially when integrating diverse systems, suppliers, and data models.

Jeffrey’s perspective is rooted in execution: what works, what doesn’t, and what organizations should look for when selecting and deploying certified solutions.
